PopCap and Square Enix is actually a brilliant combination. But this game is not. It adds the casual gameplay of PopCap and about 30% of the depth of the SE games into one package, but... they missed one vital thing: it's all been done before. It's nothing new.

Yes you can level, yes you can collect creatures but in the end it's just a 'match 3' game like all the others out there. And somehow it lacks the fun factor of other, similar, games. It just didn't pull me in. Try Plants vs Zombies or Peggle instead.

[Rating: 64/100]. I found AH to be simple and entertaining. I didn't have any playability issues, or too much of a learning curve problems; and while I wouldn't necessarily consider it to be a game I'd want to play often, I enjoyed it. And it's free.. Cursed Castilla is a game that's very obviously influenced by the Ghouls N Ghosts series. Even though this game is difficult and incredibly similar to Ghouls N Ghosts, it's different in that it's not as punishing.

I pretty much beat this game in one long gaming session because I assumed that if I were to quit the game, all of my progress would've been gone and I'd have to replay from the start. Surprisingly, you're able to continue right from where you left off so you don't have to try and beat this game all at once.

On top of that, there's also pretty much infinite continues. There are consequences to having to use so many continues, but if you're like me, you don't really care and just want to complete the game.

Like I said, this game is very influenced by Ghouls N Ghosts. In this game you can expect a lot of platforming, a multitude of monsters regularly found in fantasy, and a challenge that will keep you coming for more.

Even though I enjoyed this game, at times it left me just wanting to play the original Ghouls N Ghosts. That doesn't mean this game is bad, it's just not entirely original. Depending on what you think, that's both good or bad.

Either way, I recommend this game if you're a fan of challenging retro throwbacks and Ghouls N Ghosts. I give this game a 3/5.. best space game ever!. This game was soo much fun. Has a lot of potential. If you are a very picky gamer or get easily upset about things. WAIT its early access. If you love rollerblading and can play an early access came. THIS IS FOR YOU! OMG I will probably play and stream this game hardcore for the first week. You can play extreme crazy whacko style. You can also do tricks you might actually do in real life. I sessioned a rail doing only tricks I can do in IRL and it was stupid fun and funny. BUY THIS GAME. SUPPORT ROLLERBLADING. (wait to purchase if you are a picky b*er cuz its early access let them smooth out the game a bit so i dont have to hear you complain cuz you weren't patient. ). A solid good ol' hydro racing arcade game, very well optimized, light download and runs 60fps perfectly on ultra, nothing exceptionnal but very nice and fun to play. Devs should put a 60fps trailer video on Steam store because it doesn't render the final quality of the game like it is in fact.

It's like the cyberpunk little brother of Assassin's Creed IV's multiplayer.. Hardcore! =( I never felt so weird for playing a game as I did while playing it.

I feel clueless and at the same time, thoughtful about this game.

It's a good game anyways, although rarely someone will notice it.

I got pretty bored and interested, how can it be?

I have no idea. Well, if you don't mind playing boring games, buy it.. Very challenging game, recommended AF. I haven't played much of this game, and I don't intend to play anymore. It feels like a port of a phone game. It is ok, just not my kinda game.. I've been listening to this on youtube for free on the regular ever since the game released, because it's so good. And since i've gotten so much enjoyment out of it for free, i decided to actually buy it. i can't wait for act 2 haha.... The game is great, but I think it is much shorter than it could be. If the developer could make the storyline longer and add a few more customisable features to the thieves you hire, it'd be easily one of the best games of the year!. I absolutely love this game. I love the time management and finance management of it. I would sit down to play and my real life time would disappear. I like starting with nothing and end up owning a business or two. I ended up with a graphic design business and started buying real estate to rent out for extra money. I can't wait to see what else the Dev adds to the game!. A fun and addicting game. I am pretty bad at it, but yet I keep playing it! Ahh!. I enjoyed the content but the client that Steam boots up is broken. It's links don't work, for me only episodes 1 and 2 would load up. The others I had to rummage through the files to find, which wasn't ideal but it's better than nothing.

For anyone that might not know how to do that, go to the directory which you downloaded the game in, go to SteamLibrary > steamapps > common > SuperGameJam > content > films and then navigate from there.

I would down vote due to the actual product being broken, but I'm going to go off of the actual content, which I enjoyed.

I liked the concept of bringing two indie developers together at one of their houses and spending the next 48 hours making a game based on a theme that the previous pair had suggested. Five episodes in total. It was cool to see them work together, mind map all their ideas and throw together a unique little game with such little time. It was also interesting to see the chemistry between each pair. Some got on really well, others didn't seem to as much. I actually really liked the way the guys in episode 3 worked together. Overall it was fun, and you can even play the prototypes that they worked on.

If you have an interest in indie game development and want to kill some time, then give this a watch.

TL;DR : Thing Steam boots up is kind of broken, might have to rummage around in the files but overall it's a fun 5-part documentary with an interesting concept that shows how developers work together and bounce around ideas.
